"It's a little like the real, except you can touch everything. You can walk on mountains." "Well, take care. I saw the fox on the full-moon night," Dulce said, and went on his way...there were few guards, and they were not on the alert, since the wizard's spells had kept the Eldest, brought Ged and Lebannen to Roke Island...patient, but the patience of the horse kind was wonderful, being freely given. Dogs were loyal...a misty drizzle now, they stayed hunched up under the henhouse eaves, disconsolate. The King had directions, not illuminated by a single spark... "I have a favor to ask you," I said as calmly as I could. "You must explain to me. . .". He had been walking almost asleep. The pallor of the werelight had faded, drowned in a fainter, vaster clarity. Sky and earth were all one grey, but before them and above them, very high, over a drift of cloud, the long ridge of the mountain glimmered red... They listened to him, not agreeing, not denying, but accepting his despair. His words went into...didn't... "at the girl, Dory. She did not return his gaze, watching her mother with stolid, sullen grief... "I have to have a single heart. I can't play the harp while I'm bargaining with a mule-breeder. I. She was in his charge, in his care, he had known that when he saw her. Though she came to destroy... Men and women of the Hand had joined together on Roke a hundred or more years ago, forming a league of mages. Proud and secure in their powers, they had sought to teach others to band together in secret against the war makers and slave takers until they could rise openly against them. Women had always been leaders in the league, said Ember, and women, in the guise of salve sellers and net makers and such, had gone from Roke to other lands around the Inmost Sea, weaving a wide, fine net of resistance. Even now there were strands and knots of that net left. Medra had come on one of those traces first in Anieb's village, and had followed them since. But they had not led him here. Since the raid, Roke Island had isolated itself wholly, sealed itself inside powerful spells of protection woven and re woven by the wise women of the island, and had no commerce with any other people. "We can't save them," Ember said. "We couldn't save ourselves..." "What, to send them back into death?" the Namer said, and the Patterner, "Who is to say what is...sides; it resembled the hull of a peculiarly painted vessel lying on its side.
